

Students need an easy way to find quiet and readily available study spaces on campus because most spots are usually full, and they do not have time to wait for a space to become available.